Ambarella CFO George Laplante to Retire Later This Year

SANTA CLARA, Calif., April 18, 2018 — Ambarella, Inc. (NASDAQ: AMBA) a leading developer of low-power, HD and Ultra HD video processing semiconductors, today announced that George Laplante, the company's CFO, will retire later this year. Mr. Laplante, who joined the company in 2011, intends to remain in his current role until a successor is named and an orderly transition is completed. Ambarella has initiated a search for Mr. Laplante's successor, and once a new chief financial officer is appointed, Mr. Laplante will work collaboratively on the transfer of responsibilities.

"We are very appreciative of George's many significant contributions to Ambarella, including leading our IPO in 2012, establishing a strong financial foundation for the company, and positioning us for success as we move beyond our traditional markets with our new computer vision solutions," said Dr. Fermi Wang, president and CEO. "Personally, I would like to thank George for being a great partner to me as I became a public company CEO for the first time. George's departure is bittersweet for us, but we congratulate him on his career and wish him all the best in his retirement," he said.

"It has been a pleasure to serve as CFO of Ambarella for these past seven years, and I'm proud of the company we have become and remain very excited about our future opportunities," said Mr. Laplante. "While I look forward to my retirement, I plan to remain fully engaged at Ambarella throughout the search and transition process. There is a strong, talented team in place at all levels of the company and I have every confidence in its ability to execute the plans we have underway."
